Dear Chairmen Grassley and Neal and Ranking Members Wyden and Brady:

As you know, the current Congressional authorization of the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) program expires on December 31, 2020. The 250 undersigned companies and trade associations are writing to urge swift passage of legislation extending that authorization. Many U.S. companies are experiencing severe harm from the COVID-19 pandemic and the related economic downturn and are struggling to overcome these challenges, recover losses, and start growing again. Further uncertainty about whether companies will have to pay millions of dollars a day in new taxes in January 2021 is the last thing the American business community needs.

GSP supports American manufacturing by reducing costs of imported inputs, machinery and equipment, and helps American families make ends meet by lowering the costs of consumer goods imported duty free. The GSP program saved American companies over $1 billion in import duties in 2019. Yet temporary lapses in the past have forced companies to lay off workers, freeze new hires, cut wages and benefits, and delay capital investments while awaiting congressional reauthorization. We cannot afford for that to happen again.

Swift reauthorization is not the only thing that could help recover from the pandemic-related fallout. Lost GSP benefits for India and Turkey cost American companies as much as $375 million in new taxes between May 2019 and April 2020. A partial suspension for Thailand in April 2020 will add millions of dollars more each month in extra taxes. Similarly, American companies paid about $100 million in tariffs in 2019 on individual products that meet the statutory thresholds for reinstated GSP benefits, but all redesignation requests were rejected during the current review. Restoring lost GSP eligibility for these products would provide significant benefits to American companies and workers.

The GSP program enjoys strong bipartisan support in Congress and a track record of creating American jobs. The sooner Congress can extend GSP's authorization, and hopefully take other steps to restore critical benefits, the better positioned U.S. businesses will be to grow and thrive again.

Sincerely,
